Brushy Township Does All Right at Fox Hunters' Meet

REPORT: Horace Ritchey, who has taken over as the public relations man for Brushy township since a certain other fellow was caught getting his drinking water from Cold Springs in Pope county instead of out of Brushy creek, was telling me the following:

At the Southern Illinois Fox Hunters meet held at Fern Clyffe state park near Goreville last week, three from Brushy won first prizes on contests outside the dog competition.

Horace reports that his daughter, Rita Etherly, won the slipper kicking contest in which the contestant kicked a slipper off her foot, the slipper going the farthest being the winner. Horace was one of the judges in this contest.

"How far did she kick it?" Timmo asked Horace, and he replied: "About 150 feet."

"I don't want any 'abouts,'" I said. "How far did she actually kick the slipper?"

"About 150 feet," he reiterated. That's all I could get out of him on the subject.

The twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchey received the first place award for the best-looking set of twins at the meet and Horace was steadfast in his denial that he was a judge in this contest. The twins are Bill and Charlie.

And Mrs. Amy Zoller, a Brushy native, won the beauty contest held in conjunction with the affair.

But the man who has lost his public relations job tried his best to justify his trip to Cold Springs for water.

"I went out to Brushy creek first to get some drinking water," he said to me, "but on the way out there I saw fish from the creek out thumbing their way down a gravel road on their way to the Ohio river. And I ran across some bullfrogs that were six months old and hadn't learned to swim because there wasn't any water any place where they could learn."

BACK TO HARRISBURG: Sleuths tell me that a watermelon project in a front yard on North Main street pretty close to uptown has been having some alarming results.

NEW THINGS DEPT.: Chemical Weat, a magazine, reports that dolls which will sunburn may be the next toy rage. A New Jersey laboratory has developed a doll that will tan when exposed to the sun and will revert to its original color when left indoors several hours.

ZEKE: Timmo notes by the paper that Zeke's come to town. When he first came I thought it was of Tigie Teeter from the Ozarks. But then Tigie ain't much for travel and Zeke is all for it. Besides Zeke's from Tennessee. He came here to work for his relations, Bill Ghent and George Robertson of Robertson-Ghent insurance company.

Zeke says he and his family, last named McCoy, are going to help sell insurance.

Colored Slides Of Hawaii Shown to Rotarians, Ladies

Beautiful colored pictures, showing the exquisite scenic loveliness of the Hawaiian islands, its flowers, landscapes, buildings and people, were shown last night at the Rotarians' ladies' night meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. B. E. Montgomery, recent vacationers in the islands, took most of the pictures, several snapped from the air, and described the trip and places or objects shown. The variety of shots also included pictures of numerous historic and memorial sites and other tourist spots.

The few pictures displayed which were not taken by the Montgomerys were of a volcanic eruption occurring on one of the islands last winter.

Many of the slides presented a breath-taking array of beautiful colors, completely capturing the true beauty of the object being photographed.

Other guests present besides wives of the Rotarians were Mrs. William Schwarzer, of Mill Valley, Calif., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Halbersleben; Harry Gearhart, Mt. Vernon, and a past president of the local Rotary club.

Eisenhower Urges Election of GOP Congress; Praises 83rd Session

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower Monday night urged the American people keep Republicans in Congress next fall to advance "peace abroad, greater security, and greater and greater prosperity."

He said Americans should not be discouraged by gloomy predictions about Europe for the French are truly laboring for peace and deserve continued support of this country.

The President emphasized these thoughts in a point by point summary of the achievements of the 83rd Congress just completed and asked that the 84th Congress be allowed to continue the program.

"We're at the midpoint," he said. "We're going to get to lots of things that have not yet been done."

Mentions Several

Specifically, Mr. Eisenhower mentioned hopes of reducing the voting age, providing health reinsurance, revising the Taft-Hartley Act and strengthening foreign trade in the next Congress.

"Our relations with the external world will be the thing on which we must have to emphasize our efforts during the coming months," he said.

He added that domestic great strides forward had been made during the 19 months of his administration.

The President spoke over nationwide radio and television hookups from a studio in Denver where he is taking a working holiday.

Man, Woman

Sentenced to Year In Institutions

A man and a woman whose probation were extended six months when hauled into county court Aug. 2 on charges of violating their probation, made it to state institutions yesterday.

Harold Parks of Harrisburg and Theresa Morse of near Carrier Mills were arraigned yesterday on charges of violating their probation which had been extended six months on Aug. 2 and each was sentenced to a term of one year, Parks on the state farm at Vandalia and Mrs. Morse in the institution for women at Dwight.

The Aug. 2 arraignment was because the two were living together near Carrier Mills and at that time Judge Ralph W. Choiser told them that he was extending their probation but if they were caught together during the term of probation, they would be sent off to institutions.

Sunday night Sheriff Paul Spangler and Deputy Sheriff Isham Threet received a call to go to the woman's home and upon arriving found Parks there. He was brought in Sunday night and the woman was picked up yesterday morning.

Delbert Watts of Eldorado, who had been held in the Saline county jail on charges of writing a fraudulent check and wife abandonment, was sentenced to eight months on the Vandalia state farm.

W. E. McCoy, who had lived in Independence township and had used the name "Rev. W. E. Oxford" in his operations, was sentenced to a year at Vandalia upon his plea of guilty to charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

William T. Burns of Eldorado, charged with petit larceny, pleaded innocent and asked for a trial.

Eldorado Youth

Is Stabbed in Leg

Don Awalt, 16-year-old Eldorado youth, reported to county officers that he was stabbed in the leg Sunday night at Eldorado. No charges had been filed or arrests made this morning.

Lions Give $50 To Junior Police; Discuss Auction

Members of the Harrisburg Lions club, at their meeting Monday evening, voted to make a $50 contribution to the Harrisburg Junior Police, to help defray their expenses while working at the National Plowing Contests at Olney Sept. 16, 17, 18.

Eddie Wise, national chief of the Junior Police organization, has received an invitation to bring 35 members of the Harrisburg chapter of Junior Police to the national plowing matches to assist in directing traffic.

There will be considerable expense in making the trip and various organizations in Harrisburg have been asked to assist the boys in completing this project.

Also discussed at the Monday night meeting by the Lions was the auction the club is sponsoring for the benefit of the emergency Polio campaign. The auction will be held from the north porch of the court house Thursday evening at 7:30. Donations for the auction are being accepted at the office of County Treasurer Paul Hilliard or anyone wishing to donate items for the auction and wishing them called for should telephone Jesse Gibbons, number 632 or Mr. Hilliard.

He emphasized that the administration tax program had saved taxpayers $7,400,000,000—money "you spend for yourselves now instead of the government spending it for you."

The tax reduction program he mentioned as one of two things previous Congresses had tried "time and time again to do and have failed to do." The other accomplishment he mentioned was the St. Lawrence Seaway program.

Other accomplishments detailed by the President included:

A broader and more liberal Social Security system, a farm program that "will encourage efficient production, stimulate consumption and stabilize farm income"; the reduction of international tension; steps toward decentralization of the federal government; removal of the government from many businesses such as making synthetic rubber, operating barge lines, operating coffee roasting plants, and making rope, and counteraction of the Communist menace both in the United States and abroad.

ICC Examiner

Approves Low Rate On Kentucky Coal

WASHINGTON (UP)—An interstate Commerce Commission examiner has approved a $1.89 per ton rate for hauling bituminous coal by rail from Mount Vernon, Ind., to the Chicago area.

Examiner John A. Russell issued a report Monday in favor of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad after investigating protests to the rate instituted last year. The report is subject to commission approval.

The rate applies to coal carried from eastern Kentucky and West Virginia by Ohio River barges and transferred to railroad cars at Mount Vernon.

Other railroads protested it was below a "reasonable minimum" and would divert coal traffic moving on other routes.

Window Frames Stolen

From Vacant House

Howard James has reported to county officers that four window frames and casings have been removed and stolen from a vacant building he owns north of Harrisburg.

Legion, Auxiliary Install Officers At Joint Meeting

The annual joint installation of officers of the American Legion, George Hart Post 167 and the Auxiliary of the American Legion, Harrisburg, was held at the American Legion home Monday night.

Mrs. Ona Brown, of Carmi, director of the 24th district, installed the auxiliary officers and Warren Simpson, Cisne, commander of the 24th district, American Legion, installed the Legion officers.

The affair commenced at 6 p. m. with a covered dish dinner and the installation ceremonies began at 7:30.

During the program Miss Mona Wickam, sponsored by the Auxiliary to Girls' State, and Charles Polk, sponsored by the Legion at Boys' State, gave a report on the activities of the girls' state held at Jacksonville and Boys' State on the fairgrounds at Springfield.

Last night's meeting was opened by Bob Hull, commander of the Legion for opening ceremonies.

Auxiliary officers were installed first. Preceding the installation Mrs. Freda Keltner, retiring president, expressed her thanks for the cooperation she had received during the past year and introduced Mrs. Brown.

Following the installation Mrs. Golish, incoming president, presented gifts to Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Keltner and the retiring officers each received a gift from Mrs. Keltner.

Auxiliary officers installed were Mrs. Paul Golish, president; Mrs. John Humm, first vice; Mrs. George Johnson, second vice; Mrs. W. W. Wheatley, secretary; Mrs. Carl Jones, treasurer; Mrs. Mabelle Spencer, historian; Mrs. Herman Schwartz, chaplain, and Mrs. Vida Dwyer, sergeant-at-arms.

Legion officers installed by District Commander Simpson were Bob Hull, commander; Paul Golish, senior vice commander; Jim Hearn, junior vice commander; Norman Shewmake, adjutant; Kendall Webb, finance officer; Uless Morris, chaplain; William Hull, sergeant-at-arms; Amos Doom, historian and Bob Barber, service officer.

Guests included Clarence Brooks, Carmi, past commander of the 5th division, Chester Newby, Mill Shoals, past commander, 24th district, and James Gwaltney of Harrisburg, adjutant, Department of Illinois.

Eddie Driemeyer of Herrin, past commander, Department of Illinois, planned to attend and was to be installing officer, but was called to Washington, D. C., to serve on the program committee preparing for the National Convention of the American Legion, which starts within a few days.

Earthquake Rocks Western States

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A sharp, rolling earthquake rocked three Western states Monday night, striking hardest at a Nevada town which was shaken up by a quake only 15 years.

W. C. Marion, assistant seismologist at the University of California, said the jolt may have been an aftershock of the quake that caused nearly 600 deaths in Fallon, Nev., July 6.

Monday night's quake registered a magnitude of 6 on the Richter scale — 7 less than the July quake. The quake lasted about 5 minutes.

Fallon again took the brunt of the jolt, but sections of California and Oregon also felt the effects.

Textbook Rental For All Grades Of City Schools

The school textbook rental system, which was instituted in the Harrisburg Junior high school two years ago and expanded to some other grades last year, will be effective for all grades for the school term which will start Sept. 1.

The Dorrisville school instituted the program completely two years ago, and will continue this year.

The high school also has a rental system which covers more than 90 per cent of the textbooks, with out right purchase of a few textbooks still required.

The student insurance program, which is the same for Harrisburg and Dorrisville systems, will be effective again at a cost of 75 cents per pupil for the school year. This is available only to those who elect to come under it, but the textbook rental plan is school policy.

Under the school book rental plan, the student pays rental on textbooks, which are turned back to the school librarians at the end of the year. Work books, which are expendable, are purchased outright under the plan. Notebooks, paper and pencils are not included.

In event books are lost or are damaged through mishandling, the student is charged with the total value of the book — about three times the annual rental price.

Rental Fees

The rental fees for the various grades in the Harrisburg district are as follows:

First grade, $4.50; second grade, $3.95; third grade, $4.80; Fourth grade, $5.55; fifth grade, $6.05; sixth grade, $6.15; Seventh grade, $7.20; eighth grade, $7.20.

The kindergarten fee has not been definitely established, but will be less than $2.00, a flat fee for all materials.

Students in the lower grades, where the rental system was not effective last year, may receive a credit for books owned outright if the books are in good condition.

The rental system has been found satisfactory from the standpoint of school operation and in reduced expense to students. Instead of buying new books each year at a cost higher than the rental fee, or of having to make personal contacts in exchanging books, students find the system completely set up and operated with a minimum of difficulty.

Last year the Junior high school in Harrisburg had 100 per cent return of all rented books and 100 per cent payment of the rents.

U. S. Leaders Shocked by Vargas' Suicide

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. officials said today they expect a "peaceful and orderly" political adjustment in Brazil in the wake of President Getulio Vargas' suicide.

American leaders were shocked and saddened by the suicide of the Brazilian president, who was regarded here as a strong and true friend of the United States.

The State Department deplored his "untimely death" but made no official comment on the internal political situation in Brazil.

But diplomats with long experience in Brazil told reporters they were confident that leaders of the armed forces are in a position to suppress any violence, and that they will take steps to see that order is maintained until a new government is firmly established.

Shoots Self After Meeting With Cabinet

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UP)—President Getulio Vargas, 71, wrote a suicide note bequeathing "my death to the hatred of my enemies" early today, then fired a fatal bullet into his heart as a bitter climax to Brazil's political crisis.

"I regret I was unable to do all I wanted for the humble," the note said.

The suicide followed a night of wrangling, and a dawn decision reached in conference with his Cabinet and high army and air force officials who had demanded his resignation. Vargas had agreed to a 90-day "leave of absence."

He had been in power much of the time for nearly 25 years.

Brazil's Vice President Joao Cafe Filho took over automatically as head of state.

At first, Rio was stunned by the news. Then, as all radio stations played funeral music and flags on government buildings flew at half staff, Vargas sympathizers began roaming the streets.

President Signs Bill Restricting Subversives

DENVER, Colo. (UP)—President Eisenhower today signed a bill theoretically outlawing the Communist party, saying the American people were determined to eliminate organizations purporting to be political parties, but actually dedicated to overthrow of the government by violence.

The bill strips the Communist party and its "front" subsidiaries of all legal rights and privileges.

The new law also forces Communists to register with the federal government or face heavy fines or jail terms. The measure, one of a series of administration-backed Communist control bills, also places new restrictions on Red-infiltrated labor unions.

Mr. Eisenhower issued no formal statement when he signed the bill, but spoke informally to reporters on the front steps of the Lowry Air Force Base Administration Building, the site of the summer White House offices.

One of a Series

"I have just signed a bill," he said, "which is designed to place in the hands of our law enforcement agencies, particularly the attorney general and the FBI, better weapons for combating the Communist menace in this country. This is one of a series of bills that are designed in this general purpose."

Mr. Eisenhower last Friday signed three other measures designed to crack down on Communist subversion and espionage. One would compel witnesses before congressional committees and federal courts to testify against traitors, saboteurs and spies by granting them immunity from prosecution from any statement that might be incriminating.

Penalties Provided

The other two measures provided stiffer penalties for harboring fugitives and make it a crime to jump bail.

The new law, in a "finding of fact," states that the Communist party is not a political organization as claimed, but "is in fact an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States."

Therefore, it says, the party or any successor group regardless of name and any subsidiary groups are denied all "rights, privileges and immunities" heretofore extended to them by any legal entity.

The party and its "fronts" thus are denied the right to sue in court, to make contracts, or to do anything else a "legal" organization can do. Some sponsors said the law denies the party the right to nominate political candidates. But others contend this is solely a right extended by the states.

Wife of Chaplain Regains Sight with Corneas Donated by Colonel, Sergeant

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—The wife of an Army chaplain stepped off a transatlantic airliner at Rhine-Main Airport today and saw her husband clearly for the first time in 15 years.

The sight of Mrs. Sam B. Jones, formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., was restored after an ordeal of 23 years of ever-increasing blindness.

She won her fight against blindness when an Army eye specialist performed a rare operation and transplanted healthy corneas donated by a colonel and a sergeant to replace Mrs. Jones' defective ones.

As a result, after a 14-month separation, Mrs. Jones is starting a new life with her husband, a chaplain with the 2nd Field Hospital.

"It's wonderful to see him again and see him well," she said. "I'm walking on air." Major Jones said.

Mrs. Jones said her fight against blindness was won when the colonel and the sergeant donated their corneas to her.

Both had lost their sight due to diseased eyeballs, but the corneas were not affected.

"The colonel couldn't bear to think of losing his eyes," Mrs. Jones said, "but when he found out it might save my eyesight he was thrilled."

She declined to give the colonel's name, but the sergeant was identified as Roy Kilburn, Syracuse, N. Y.

When details were arranged, Mrs. Jones went to the Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., where the operation was performed.

She was told she'd have to lay in darkness for three months before success or failure could be determined.

"At last I couldn't stand the suspense any longer," she said. "After two and a half months, I peeked while they were changing the bandage. I looked out the window and saw a tree.

"It was thrilling."

Follows Night of Wrangling; Vice President Succeeds

Caution, Calmness And Reason

Editorial — BY BRUCE BOSSAT

President Eisenhower is fond of describing himself as a "middle of the roader." Generally that is thought of as placing a man midway between extremes of left and right in the political spectrum. But the President is giving the term wider and deeper meaning.

He is applying it to mean an avoidance of extremes in many fields. He is ranging himself on the side of caution, calmness and reason. He is doing this with such persistence that it makes a clear pattern of presidential performance.

Joseph C. Harsch of the Christian Science Monitor recently pointed out six specific instances, gleaned from two presidential press conferences, which reveal this pattern.

Mr. Eisenhower was against our cutting off diplomatic relations with Russia or pulling out of the UN. He thought it foolish to say we would "never" recognize Red China, since "never" is a pretty strong word. He suggested we ought to think of our allies as partners rather than merely followers of our leadership. He opposed the idea of "preventive war." And he said the Indo-China truce might open the way for a better free world structure with which to block spreading communism.

As Harsch noted, none of these positions is popular, nor easy to defend. It is much easier to say we should snub Russia, cut Red China dead, rattle the saber, and "get America out of the UN and the UN out of America," as the patriotic sloganeers like to put it. Most politicians, and particularly demagogues, would feel compelled to take the easy path. Some demagogues like to suggest that when they wave the flag and shout patriotic slogans they are somehow engaged in a difficult, thankless enterprise. In fact, what they are doing is the easiest thing any politician could possibly do.

It is much harder to do what Mr. Eisenhower is doing: take a position in which the self-interest of the United States is not so obvious, a position which measures the country's gain over a long term. Perhaps, as Harsch indicates, only a man occupying the White House, with its vast power and prestige, could dare to look beyond the obvious and to consider more than the immediate political advantage.

But if that be so, there is still no law compelling a President to stress reason, caution, and the larger considerations of national welfare. We must be thankful Mr. Eisenhower chooses to, and hope that his example is followed by men who alone could not dare such a course.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

MRS. BABE RUTH Says: "King Of Swat" Would Be Happy Over Babe Ruth Kids' League; Juveniles Need Discipline And Training Of Ball Field; Baseball Made The Babe And The Babe Made Baseball.

(Note: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Mrs. Babe Ruth, widow of the beloved "King of Swat.")

WASHINGTON. — The Babe was at my side the other day. I went to Washington for the Babe Ruth League world series — teams of kids 13 to 15 from every part of the country — and when they weren't playing baseball, they were looking in on their congressmen and senators and visiting the shrines of our magnificent capital. They were growing up.

Wherever we went, I felt the Babe was looking over my shoulder and listening in. Kids were fish. We dropped in on Senator Robert Hendrickson, chairman of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency. There's nothing phony about the senator's interest in the subject. He's a grandfather 11 times and he should know about children's problems.

He also knows there's no special cure-all for juvenile delinquency. He idolized the Babe and knew his background. Baseball helped my husband as it is helping thousands of kids in organized baseball programs today — kids who are restless and burning up with unspent energy.

We visited Senator Hennings of the same committee. "The Babe came of a broken home," he said, "but it didn't break him. How the Babe would hit 'em in Sportsman's Park, St. Louis! That must have been his favorite ball park." The senator gave a most inspiring talk to the group of youngsters from Joplin, Mo. I am sure they will remember the sage remarks as long as they live. Senator Hennings was a track star at Cornell. Senator Hendrickson played high school baseball, and Senator Kefauver played both baseball and football.

By Galbraith

There were kids from Jackson, Tenn., and they were greeted by Senator Kefauver, also of the committee.

"I'm sure the Babe got his thrills, even while he was under 16, on the ball field instead of dimly lit street corners," Kefauver told them. "You don't get into trouble on the ball field."

Senator William Langer of the Juvenile Delinquency committee told me there is a higher rate increase in rural areas today than in our cities. This will surprise many as it did me.

One thing stands out in my mind with the juvenile delinquency committee senators. They are trying to reverse a disastrous national trend. By 1930, unless that trend is reversed, 1,600,000 youngsters each year will be in trouble with the law. America cannot afford to lose the good citizenship of these boys.

THE BABE HAD TOUGH START
I wonder how many kids in America today know anything more about Babe Ruth than that he symbolized the home run? The Babe meant much more than that to an older generation in his glory years—a big, good-natured orphan who learned to play ball at St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore.

What he stood for then in what we have come to know as the golden age, was a blessed land of opportunity. Baseball made the Babe, and the Babe in turn made baseball.

Like so many kids out of broken homes, the Babe might have got into trouble, real trouble, but for the guidance and understanding of the brothers of St. Mary's. He owed much to Brother Mattias, and to the Brothers, Paul, Albert, and Gilbert.

They taught him the moral values; they gave him religious training. They encouraged him to play ball in his free hours. He was not a good student, but he learned to distinguish between the good and the bad, and by the time he was 19 he was ready to make his way in professional baseball.

I don't know how old the Babe was when he set his mind in the right direction, but I'd guess it was under 16. That's why I'm so happy to have the Babe's name perpetuated by the Babe Ruth League, sponsored by the Coca-Cola company, for those vital years of adolescent development. They get to play ball in an organized way; they get good coaching, and most of all they don't ever get to feel they're unwanted.

These were the elements the Babe remembered of his years at St. Mary's. He would tell me of the kids he had left behind. He often went back there, but most of those kids were no longer there. Still, he felt better for it.

POPULAR WITH KIDS
The Babe's upbringing made him act so natural when he was around kids, they just happened to like him as he liked them. It wasn't just a case of putting his autograph to a scrap of paper or a scorecard or a baseball. He felt cleaner after a time with the kids, he never forgot he was once one of them.

The Babe told me a story of a little miracle in Tampa, Fla. The Yankees had played an exhibition that afternoon, and they were joggling to their bus behind the right field stands. A car was parked nearby, and seated in the front seat was a hunched-up kid with an adult beside him. The Babe glanced at the wasted kid, and he waved and yelled, "Hi Ya, Kid!" Then he thought so more of it, but the greeting had a remarkable effect on the boy. He stood up and called something back.

Other Yankees and sports writer Ferd Lieb followed in the Babe's path, and they noticed the boy's father shedding a tear. The man was overwhelmed. He kept saying over and over, "My boy stood up, he stood up. It's the first time in two years. My boy stood up."

There was something inspiring about the Babe, and yet the problem of delinquency could easily have overwhelmed him if he hadn't been steered right. I think too much stress—too many headlines—on the destructive side have hurt the kids. Certainly the scare head lines had to be used. Communities had to be made aware of the problem. But now I say, let's bury those headlines. In one way they multiply the problem, make phony heroes of more kids. Let's tell them of the good the kids do. And let's keep them on the ball field where they won't get into trouble.

Though there is no cure for juvenile delinquency, the more playing fields we have, the fewer delinquents we'll have, I'm sure.

SALINE COUNTY OIL REPORT:

Oil Operations In Saline County

By BOB SKEELS

There were sixteen operations in the county the past week, one dry hole and one completed oil well with two first reports both drilling.

The wildest test one mile northwest of Harrisburg owned by Jim Dean, Jake Hallowell and Southern Development company has finally been abandoned. They fractured the Aux Vases sand 2616-24 and it started swabbing around 16 barrels oil per hour but soon dropped down to less than two per hour. Then they plugged back to the Paint Creek sand and fractured it from 2454-72. They lost their lead oil this time and didn't recover anything, then after plugging back to the Cypress 2362-81 and fracturing it, it swabbed only salt water at the rate of one and a half barrels per hour with no oil, so the casing has been pulled, and the hole is plugged and abandoned at a total depth of 2643 in the O'Hara lime. Just another wildest test that a fracture job would either make or break it.

Just south of Raleigh, and more than three miles from other production, the Slaughter Producing company is digging below 2950 on its wildest test, the No. 1 Evelyn Wesley, 22-8s-6e somewhere in the Aux Vases sand.

Test Hardinsburg
E. H. Morris of Crossville is digging also in the Aux Vases on his No. 1 Edwin Lewis, 36-7s-6e, four miles northwest of Eldorado, and a half mile from production. He should be below 2850 at this time. Bill Graef of Mt. Carmel is the rock reader for Mr. Morris.

Just north of Eldorado, James R. Grandin is cleaning out and testing the Hardinsburg sand 2308-12 on his No. 1 E. Kittinger, 8-8s-7e, with his No. 1 D. T. Reader still a location.

Four miles northwest of Eldorado, Breuer and Robinson No. 3 Woolard Heirs, and No. 3 Woolard community, are both still locations in section 35-7s-6e.

Byron Rucker and Bud Rue are digging ahead at 2100 on their No. 1 Watson-Hardy Heirs, 17-8s-7e, after running a ten inch minestrung to 650 feet.

Just east of the above well, Illinois Mid Continent is cleaning out to re-perforate the Tar Springs sand 2242-56 after running a squeeze job in an attempt to shut off the water. Their No. 3 Stinson is a location to be drilled next if the No. 2 proves commercial.

Drill Ashbrook Test
Also in 17-8s-7e, on the west suburbs of Eldorado, Clarence Brehm is drilling below 1400 on his No. 1

70 More Airmen Questioned in Probe of Gang

RANTOUL, Ill. (AP)—Seventy more airmen were rounded up for questioning at nearby Chanute Air Force Base in an investigation of the vicious "pacheco" gang of tattooed hoodlums.

Air Force officers have already jailed 30 airmen on suspicion of being the hard core of the gang, which glorifies rape, narcotics addiction and crimes of violence.

Maj. Gen. Byron E. Gates, base commander, ordered court-martial proceedings against all airmen proved to be members of the gang. "The Air Force will not tolerate a few bad apples snuffing a barrel of good American boys," he said.

The 70 additional airmen were among 175 who were found with tattoos or carrying switch-blade knives in a shirt-off inspection of the base's 15,000 men Saturday.

The band's insignia is usually a tattooed cross on the upper part of the hand between the thumb and forefinger. The top of the cross points towards the shoulder and it is surrounded by a semi-halo of seven dots.

The mark is partially hidden unless the hand is spread wide. Gang rules permit additional markings for unusual crimes, such as a beating or a rape.

New Altitude Record Set by Rocket Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Arthur Murray of Harrisburg, Pa., is the Air Force pilot who flew an experimental plane to 18 miles in the stratosphere—the highest altitude ever reached by plane.

The United Press learned today that Murray flew Bell Aircraft's X1A on the flight to a record-breaking altitude of about 90,000 feet.

The X1A is a rocket-powered plane which also holds the unofficial world speed record of 1,650 miles an hour.

Defense officials have tried to wrap a tight cloak of secrecy around the new altitude mark. Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott was allowed Saturday night to announce to the Air Force Assn. convention in Omaha, Neb., that a new altitude record had been set. He was not permitted to say what the new record was, what plane had made the record and who was flying the plane.

The previous altitude record was set last year by Marine pilot Lt. Col. Marion E. Carl who flew to a height of 83,235 feet in the Navy's Skyrocket plane.

Murray and his plane were carried aloft in the belly of an especially-adapted bomber to an altitude of around 30,000 feet about two months ago.

After being air-launched, Murray steered the plane into a steep climb.

After reaching the top of his climb, Murray pushed the nose of his plane downwards and glided back to a landing on the dried-up lake bed at Edwards Air Force Base, Muroc, Calif.

Virginia Gregg Praised By Tribune Review Of Film 'Dragnet'

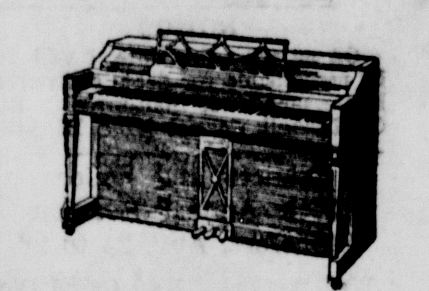

Virginia Gregg, radio and television star who was born in Harrisburg to the late Dewey Todd and Edward Gregg and who is now Mrs. Jaime del Valle of Los Angeles, Calif., was given favorable mention today in the Chicago Tribune in a review of the motion picture film, "Dragnet," by Mae Tinee.

The article reads: "The film opens with a murder, in which the killer used a sawed-off shotgun. In the lines of the script, 'The first shot cut him in half, the other made him a crowd.' The victim was a collector for a gambler, a member of a group of hoodlums with long records but few convictions. By using a lot of energy, a great deal of technical equipment, and with the aid of three women, our heroes turn up the criminal. Two of the women are wives of gangsters, the other a policewoman armed with a recording device. (Virginia Gregg is by far the best actress of the trio)." She has the part of Ethel Marie Starkie.

Strikes Idle Copper Workers

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—About 33,000 workers were idle across the nation today in strikes against the nation's two largest copper producers, Kennecott Copper Corp. and Anaconda.

Negotiations in the nine-day strike by the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers against Kennecott were reported to be in the "critical stage," with a three-member federal mediation panel declining to comment on their progress.

This strike has idled 11,000 men in Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico. American Smelting and Refining Co. became the 12th plant to be affected when 1,000 employees at its Garfield, Utah, operations were idled Monday because of a lack of concentrates to smelt.

The IMMSW said 15,000 metal miners had walked off their jobs throughout the Anaconda chain. Union spokesmen said more than 10,000 mine-mill workers at three Anaconda plants were on strike in Montana, with another 2,000 out at Anaconda plants in the Miami, Ariz., area.

Officials estimated another 5,000 men idle at Anaconda subsidiaries in Connecticut and New York. But the strike had not yet extended to Anaconda plants in northern Idaho.

Five Charges Listed Against Sen. McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special Senate committee today made public a five-point bill of particulars against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy which will serve as the basis for its hearings starting next week.

The six-man committee lumped into five general counts 13 of some 46 charges made against the Wisconsin Republican by Senate colleagues.

Chairman Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) notified McCarthy and his attorney of the act. Watkins said the committee reserves the right to move on to other charges after its "initial" hearings.

Watkins said the five counts were selected because they involve "some of the most important" charges against McCarthy and because "to a considerable extent, evidence on the five can be obtained from official records without outside testimony."

The five counts were backed by specific charges advanced by Sens. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), Wayne Morse (Ind.-Ore.), and Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.).

They are:

1. "Incidents of contempt for the Senate or a senatorial committee." Cited under this heading were charges by Fulbright, Morse, and Flanders that McCarthy refused to answer questions posed by a subcommittee which investigated his finances.

2. "Incidents of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders." Cited were charges by the three senators that McCarthy, during the Army-McCarthy hearings, "openly invited and incited employees of the government to violate the law and their oaths" by urging them to bring information to him.

3. "Incidents involving receipt or use of confidential or classified documents or other confidential information, from executive files." Cited were charges by Morse and Flanders referring to another Army-McCarthy hearing incident in which the two senators said McCarthy made improper use of a classified FBI document.

4. "Incidents involving abuses of colleagues in the Senate." The committee specifically cited statements by Flanders and Morse charging that McCarthy had ridiculed and unfairly accused fellow senators of improper conduct.

5. "Incidents relating to Ralph Zwicker, a general officer of the Army of the United States." Cited were charges by Fulbright, Morse, and Flanders that McCarthy, at the outset of the Army-McCarthy controversy, "unfairly attacked Army officers, including Zwicker, and damaged their reputations."

It announced that the censure panel will hold a closed session on Monday, Aug. 30, when the hearings were expected to start. Public sessions will start the following day in the Senate caucus room, scene of the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Wolfson, who with his associates controls industrial concerns with assets of some 220 million dollars was expected to announce at the press conference whether he is buying Ward stock as an investment or in a bid to wrest control of the company from Sewell Avery, 50-year old chairman of the board.

It has been Wolfson's practice in the past to buy companies in distress through huge stock purchases and put them on a firm financial footing before selling out again.

Avery, who has iron-fisted control of the mail order firm, has practiced conservative policies in the company since the war.

He has frequently voiced fear of a depression and has built up a 300 million dollar financial reserve in his company to bolster it against hard times.

Last year, however, sales in Montgomery Ward slipped to a seven-year low while its main competitor, Sears, Roebuck and Co., increased to an all-time high. Since 1946 Sears' sales have increased 185 per cent while Ward's have climbed only 52 per cent.

Russia Charges Act of Violence In Diplomat Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has charged the United States with "an act of violence" in the case of Soviet diplomat-spy Yuri A. Rastvorov, who has been given asylum in this country, diplomatic sources reported today.

The charge was made in a long note delivered by a Soviet embassy messenger to the State Department Monday night.

The note was signed by Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, who had refused to go to the State Department for an appointment of the Rastvorov case on Friday, Aug. 13.

The Soviet note reiterated previous Soviet charges that American intelligence agencies had taken Rastvorov out of Japan after he disappeared on the night of Jan. 24 from his diplomatic post in Tokyo.

"Act of Violence"

The note said, according to informants, that Russia "considers this act of violence" in the Rastvorov case as violating elementary standards of international law.

State Department officials confirmed receipt of the note. They said it was about "what had been expected." They said the note, however, had not been fully studied and it was impossible to say whether a reply would be made.

The State Department on Aug. 13 disclosed that Rastvorov had fled the Soviet mission in Japan on Jan. 24 and had asked asylum. At the same time, Rastvorov appeared at the State Department and told reporters that he had rejected his homeland because "I wanted to live like a decent human being."

GOP Women Form Committee to Aid Meek Campaign

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois Republican women leaders said they have organized a women's division of the Illinois Committee for Joe Meek.

The women discussed plans at a luncheon meeting Monday to help Meek in his campaign for U. S. senator.

Among the women who will aid Meek in his battle with Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) are Rep. Marguerite Church, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon, Republican national committeewoman; and Mrs. H. C. Dormitzer, chairman of the women's division of the Republican Central Committee for Cook county.

Musical Minister

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Illness of the organist had little effect on services at Episcopal Church of Holy Communion here. The Rev. Eric Greenwood, church rector, just stepped over to the organ, and the assistant rector, the Rev. David Botts, gave the sermon. Greenwood is a fine organist.

ELDORADO DEANERY HOLY NAME SOCIETY MEETS—Delegates numbering about 500 from 24 parishes attended a meeting of the Holy Name society at Eldorado Sunday at which The Very Rev. Albert Zuroweste, Bishop of the Belleville diocese, was the main speaker and told of his recent visit to the Vatican and his interviews with the Pope and also of his visit to the Shrine of Lourdes in France. The Rev. W. E. Hanagan, head of the Deanery and pastor of St. Mary's church in Eldorado, is assisted by Bernard Wirth of Mt. Carmel, president, Harry Sieben of Junction, vice president, and Father Brandt of the Holy Name men parading to the church with The Very Rev. Zuroweste, Father Hanagan and other dignitaries on the porch of the church rectory. The colorful ceremony was held in the new St. Mary's church. (Foster Studio Photo)

President's Veto Of Pay Hikes Draws Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's veto of pay hikes for 1,750,000 federal workers evoked a flood of wrathful criticism today from labor leaders, employee spokesmen and some congressmen.

Many of those who blasted Mr. Eisenhower's action called for a new pay raise bill when the 84th Congress meets next January. Some of the critics urged that the veto be made an issue in the fall campaign for control of the next Congress.

The 5 per cent pay raise bill, sped through Congress in last week's adjournment rush, was killed by a presidential veto Monday. Mr. Eisenhower, in a statement from the Summer White House at Denver, said the measure did not correct "inequities" in federal pay scales and was not accompanied by a hike in government revenue.

Some Republicans Critical

Although Democratic cries of protest were heard immediately, some of the sharpest criticism was voiced by members of Mr. Eisenhower's own party. Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) called

The Daily Register, Harrisburg, Illinois
Tuesday, August 24, 1954
Page Five

Mr. Eisenhower's veto statement a "subterfuge." He said neither the President nor any other administration official advocated a revenue measure to provide money to pay an increase to the classified civil servants.

Gross also said the President and his administration did not "propose a tax measure to finance the foreign give-away program which will be one of the largest contributions to this year's deficit and debt."

Morse Flays Veto

Rep. Robert J. Corbett (R-Pa.), a House sponsor of the bill, said Mr. Eisenhower was "the victim of bad advice" in killing the pay raises. He predicted the next Congress would enact the legislation even if it has to override a presidential veto.

Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind.-Ore.), bitter critic of the Eisenhower administration, said the veto showed the President's "lack of understanding of the living problems of low income groups." He urged the election of a Democratic Congress in November "to override such vetoes."

Sen. Earle C. Clements (D-Ky.), Senate Democratic whip, told a meeting of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks in Cincinnati that the chief executive "went back" on a 1952 campaign promise to up federal workers' pay.

19 Cities Still On Critical List In Water Supply

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Nineteen Illinois cities today were listed in a weekly state drought report as those having a critically short supply of water.

The report, made to Gov. William G. Straton by the State Division of Sanitary Engineering, put the same cities on the "critical" list for the second straight week.

It said heavy rains in some sections of the state had failed to relieve the shortages in the towns in most need of water. The cities of Carterville, Brownstown, Greenfield and Highland are now hauling water from nearby public supplies to supplement their own supplies.

The 19 cities on the critical list were Ashley, Assumption, Beecher City, Blandinsville, Brownstown, Carterville, Coulterville, Eldorado, Elkville, Greenfield, Harrisburg, Highland, Jerseyville, Kincaid, Mulberry Grove, Nashville, Paris, Teutopolis and Williamsville.

Washington's Mount Fannier has 40 square miles of glaciers, largest single peak glacier system in the United States.

Six Churchmen Nominated to Council Posts

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The World Council of Churches will choose six new presidents tonight, but the delegates' choices were already virtually assured.

Six churchmen, including two North Americans, were nominated at a plenary session of the WCC's second Assembly Monday night. They were sure to be chosen tonight, barring new nominations. Such an event was considered unlikely.

The six nominees were: The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill of New York, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church; Archbishop Michael, representing the Ecumenical Patriarchate of the Eastern Orthodox Church. His jurisdiction extends over North and South America and his headquarters is in New York.

The Very Rev. John Baillie, Church of Scotland theologian and principal of the New College, Edinburgh.

Bishop Sante Uberto Barbieri of Buenos Aires, in Argentina, Uruguay and Bolivia of the Central Conference of the Methodist church of the U. S. A.

Mar Thoma Juhanon, metropolitan of the Mar Thoma Syrian Church of Malabar, South India.

Bishop F. K. Otto Dibelius, bishop of the Evangelical Union Church of Berlin-Brandenburg and president of the Evangelical Church in Germany. The church is a federation of Lutheran, Reformed and United churches.

Nominated as an honorary president was the Rt. Rev. George K. A. Bell, bishop of Chichester of the Church of England.

Army Drivers Get Personality Tests

WASHINGTON — Your personality has a lot to do with your ability to drive a car safely, the U. S. Army has decided.

If you're the happy-go-lucky type, good at bluffing or a devotee of gambling, chances are you couldn't qualify as a driver in the Army.

Ten years ago the Army selected its drivers primarily on the basis of driving skill measured in road tests. But recent research has changed the picture. A man's potential safety record is now determined by his personality traits.

Before a candidate for a driver's classification is put behind the wheel, the Army hands him a questionnaire to fill out. More than 65 per cent of the questions deal with personality. The Army believes this is the best way to eliminate the horn-blonkers, impulsive and quick-tempered drivers and the ones who take too-long chances. Records show the new method has cut down on accident risks.

Attlee Group Is Criticized by British Papers

LONDON — British newspapers reported today the Labor party delegation visiting Red China has invited Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov and Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai to visit Britain this fall.

One of the newspapers, the conservative Daily Sketch, called the Laborites "yellow travelers."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express scornfully pointed to a report of a Laborite visit to a Chinese mine confiscated by the Reds from British businessmen. The headline said: "Attlee Inspects The Booty."

The Daily Sketch's editorial writer, who signed his first editorial only as "Candidus," made a scathing attack on the Attlee mission under the heading: "The Yellow Travelers."

"They had sharks' fins and lotus roots," Candidus wrote. "They have toasted everything except America in Chinese gin."

"They have also seen a model coal mine. We built the coal mine, of course, with our money, but the Reds just reached out and grabbed it."

Candidus noted that a senior official of the coal mine had been put to death by the Communists only a few days before the Attlee visit.

"They didn't do this for the tourists," Candidus wrote. "It's a pity. They could have asked Dr. Sumnerskill to lay Mr. Malenkov's flowers on the grave."

Candidus referred to Dr. Edith Summerskill, MP, only woman in the official delegation of eight. Both she and Clement Attlee, former prime minister, were said to have visited Malenkov and Chou to visit Britain in the fall.

The News Chronicle said Attlee invited Malenkov and Chou and was expected to invite Red dictator Mao Tse-Tung also.

"The ball is now thrown to Sir Winston Churchill, who claims to believe in the value of personal meetings of the world's top leaders," the News Chronicle said.

Expect 200,000 To Vote Today In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — An incumbent seeking his third term in the U. S. Senate against one of the state's fastest rising political figures furnished the main attraction for Mississippi Democrats in primary balloting today.

About 200,000 voters were expected to choose between veteran Sen. James O. Eastland and Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin, a handsome ex-Army officer who hadn't even started his political career when Eastland began his first term in Washington a dozen years ago.

Only one other major race was at stake. Rep. William Colmer of Pascagoula, dean of the state's congressmen, was expected to win easily over two opponents.

Five other congressmen were returned without opposition.

Eastland, a southern conservative, and Gartin, who made a quick leap from the mayorship of the industrial city of Laurel to his present job, both predicted clear-cut wins for themselves in the primary, tantamount to election in Democratic Mississippi.

McNeece Wins

Decision from Garth Panter

NEW YORK (AP)—Colorful young Billy McNeece, fresh from his first "name victory" over middleweight Garth Panter, said today, "bring on the high rankers."

And matchmaker Teddy Brenner promised to get Pierre Langlois, Joey Giardello or Rocky Castellani on Oct. 11 for the red-haired Irish scrapper who won a unanimous 10-round decision over rugged Panter of Salt Lake City at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena Monday night.

Panter, who was staggered eight times but actually finished the stronger in their TV fight, declared, "I can't believe that was only Billy's 13th professional bout, and I can't believe it was only his third 10-rounder. No sir, he's too good for that. He's one of the best I ever met."

Twenty-two-year old McNeece of Central Islip, N. Y., registered his 11th victory in 13 fights with steaming left hooks and hard straight rights. He out-boxed and out-fought the 24-year-old veteran of 72 previous battles and threatened particularly in the seventh round to tag him with his second knockout. Panter was staggered three times in that session and knocked halfway through the ropes.

McNeece was favored at 2-1. In Monday night's other television fight at St. Nicholas Arena, Chico Varona of Cuba, sixth-ranking welterweight contender, won a split 10-round decision over 35-year-old Frankie Fernandez of Hawaii.

Varona, scaling 147 pounds to Fernandez' 142 1/2, landed the harder blows, but Honolulu Frankie kept the fight close by his buzz-saw attack.

'Flip of Tie' Keeps Guy in Lineup

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

(Filling in for Harry Grayson)
NEW YORK (NEA)—Over a season, the fellow running a major league club runs into a few U. N. sized problems. Frequently, the only way to solve them is by running up a higher bar bill.

Talent usually provides the biggest puzzles. Not the lack of it, for you get plenty of players in these platoon-wacky days. The big thing is to know when to get rid of what you have.

On more occasions than the average set of nerves can take, a game is lost because a pitcher was not asked to take the sweat off his body with a shower two tosses ago. Or, an infielder, as a reward for not being kept out of mischief on the bench, kicked away a double play grounder.

IT IS EASY FOR AN onlooker to say, with absolute authority, that the pitcher should have been taken out in the third or that left-hand hitting outfielder should have been in right. But an awful lot of things crop up to change a manager's thinking when he debates moves such as these.

Take Al Lopez of Cleveland. The other day, the simple business of a tie being knotted before his eyes switched him off any thoughts about benching Al Rosen.

Rosen had swung his normally potent bat for a stretch of 39 chances and only two products of all this effort fell safely. After a contest at Detroit, Lopez scuffed his spikes along the dressing room floor, debating whether or not to bench his guy the next day.

While he was doing it, Rosen walked up to a mirror nearby and began to knot his tie. Lopez watched as the ends of a fashionable piece of neckwear were spun around.

Then Rosen glanced at him. "Aren't you tempted to take me out of there, Al?" he said with a don't-you-dare-do-it smile.

LOPEZ LOOKED, THEN FORCED a smile in return. "You're my guy," he said, and the matter was dropped there.

More than just a few managers have found themselves in Lopez' situation. Charley Dressen always was one. Easily in his career, he always fell for his pitchers' one-more-chance sales talk and left them in. Only the next pitch the guy threw usually disappeared from Charley's view at an alarming clip.

Dressen found an answer to this rhetoric. He timed his walks. The minute he reached the foul line on the way to yank an errant hurler from the mound, he would start hollering: "You! You keep quiet and don't talk me out of this. I'm taking you out."

Whenever the subject of changing pitchers is brought up, Casey Stengel, as manager of the Dodgers, comes to mind.

BOOM-BOOM BECK WAS ON the mound for Stengel at old Baker Bowl in Philadelphia and he was not doing well. In fact, Hack Wilson, out in rightfield, was thoroughly exhausted from chasing long shots to that sector.

Boom-Boom didn't want to come out and put up an argument. Wilson, glad for the respite, went over to the right field fence and leaned against it, eyes closed.

Finally, Casey persuaded Boom-Boom to get off the mound before somebody was killed. But to blow off steam, Beck turned and hurled the ball into right field.

It banged up against the wall where Wilson was cooling out. Thinking it was another Phillie hit, Wilson jumped up, grabbed the ball and fired a perfect peg into second.

UNDER STENGEL, THE YANKEES have done more than their share of shuffling talent and out of it has come a player's password: "Don't let them take you out, even once."

That's because, at the season's outset, Casey juggled Irv Noren into the Yankee outfield in order to give Hank Bauer, an All-Star outfielder, a short rest.

Well, you know what Noren has been doing. Bauer? Oh, he gets a chance to play now and then—when Gene Woodling is assigned to the hardwork for a short rest.

All-Stars Hand Ronnie's First Loss of Season

First game winners in a three-out-of-five series to decide champions in the Kiwanis leagues were decided yesterday.

In the first game the III league all-stars handed Ronnie's their first defeat of the season, 10-8. The all-stars scored nine runs in the first two innings and from then on it was a question of how long it would take Ronnie's to reduce the lead.

Ronnie's hacked away at the lead-out, with one out in the last inning, they had runners on second and third, but D. Pickford came in and retired the last two batters.

The Jaycees defeated the Shells in the first game of their series, 8-3. The Jaycees iced the game with a six run rally in the third inning. Weatherly was the winner and Howton the loser.

The Palace nine shut out the AAA's, 10-0, in the Kitty league series. Henshaw, Palace hurler, allowed only one hit in gaining the victory. Banks was the loser.

Another game, Cokes vs. Walker's, was not played due to wet grounds at Taylor field. It will be played today.

Landy to Quit Running Mile

MACOLIN, Switzerland (AP)—Australia's John Landy, who has run the mile faster than any man in history, never will race at that distance again.

Landy, weighing 11 pounds more than he did on Aug. 17 when he was beaten by England's Roger Bannister in the "mile of the century" at Vancouver, Canada, made that announcement here where he is watching the British team train for the European championships which start Wednesday.

"I've been running solidly since November and now I'm finished," said Landy. "I'm 24 years old and the little bit of fitness I have left I want to keep."

The Australian star ran the fastest mile in history on June 21 at Turku, Finland, when he was timed in 3:58.9. The performance, which lowered Bannister's record by 1.4 seconds, was officially accepted as the world record last Saturday by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Also accepted was his mark of 3:41.8 for 1,500 meters set in the same race.

Deaf Snakes

Scientific tests have shown snakes to be entirely deaf. Thus, the rattler cannot hear his own rattle, and the cobra cannot take his rhythm from the snake charmer's music, but from the swaying of the performer's body.

Measured in volume, the giant sequoias of central California are the largest trees in the world.

Looking AT Sports

By BILL MELTON

Freddie Williams of Carrier Mills, who was offered a contract with the Mt. Vernon team of the Class D, MOV league following a tryout earlier this month, decided to retain his amateur status and turned down the offer.

His father, Robert Whitney, said recently that the offer was discussed at home and it was thought best for Williams to return to school this fall as an amateur instead of a pro. He will be a sophomore at SIU and hopes to play baseball at the university and maybe some basketball too. During his high school days at Carrier Mills Williams was a stand-out both on the basketball floor and the baseball diamond.

Let's give the pitchers and catchers a going over in The Sporting News Baseball Quiz this week. Here is how you play the game.

Mark your choices 1-2-3-4, then score yourself ten points for a correct first pick, five for a second, three for a third and one for a fourth. If you score twenty points, you're an average baseball fan. If you hit fifty points, you're perfect!

Most fans know that Stan Musial, Babe Ruth and George Sisler started their playing careers as pitchers and that Buckey Walters and Bob Lemon started in other spots on the diamond.

1. What pitcher (then playing another position) led the Western International League and Southern Association in home runs?

( ) Harshman ( ) McDermott ( ) Stone ( ) Law ( ) Porterfield ( ) Wheat

2. Ed Lopat started his pro career in 1937 as a first baseman for Greensburg in the Pennsylvania State League—out there is a major league coach who started his playing career as a pitcher for the Boston Braves in the twenties and closed it as an outfielder more than twenty years later.

( ) Blades ( ) Fitzpatrick ( ) Kress ( ) Conney ( ) Galan ( ) Manush

3. Pitchers are often called on to sacrifice, but few are adept at laying down a bunt. What major league pitcher won the undisputed leadership for most sacrifice hits in a season?

( ) Feller ( ) Kinder ( ) Sain ( ) Gromek ( ) Lopat ( ) Trucks

The Philadelphia Athletics in 1922 were in seventh place at the close of the season. The St. Louis Browns lost the pennant by one game to the New York Yankees. One of the games the Browns lost that season was to a pitcher the A's signed as a free agent, Adolph Rettig. Rettig never again won a major league game after his victory in his first starting assignment.

The father of a present-day major leaguer pitched in 54 major league games over a period of six seasons—and won only one game. Who is he?

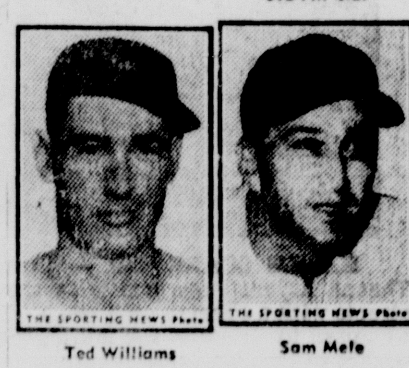

( ) Fridley ( ) Hatton ( ) Nichols ( ) Glynn ( ) Kiely ( ) Pillette

5. Only one of the players listed below has never pitched in the major leagues. Who is he?

Answers to The Sporting News baseball quiz in this column Wednesday.

John Romonosky made one appearance with Columbus in an American Association game last week. He hurled four hitless innings in relief, but was wild, allowing four bases on balls, hitting one batsman and being charged with a wild pitch. He also retired two on strikes. Les Pinkham, the West Frankfort catcher with Columbus, went in as a pinch hitter for Romonosky in the ninth and popped out.

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP)—Coach Buddy Parker worked on fundamentals with his Detroit Lions Monday in an effort to smooth out some of the Lions' rough spots.

After separate individual drills, Parker put the units together for drills in a running game, a weakness that showed up in the Lions' exhibition game with the Philadelphia Eagles last weekend.

Yankees', Dodgers' Pennant Hopes to Depend on Games Left with Indians, Giants

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Face-to-face warfare with the Indians and the Giants, in which it is possible to gain huge chunks of ground in a hurry, is just about the chief hope left today to those rapidly fading "old champion" Yankees and Dodgers.

In this respect, the Dodgers have a better chance to make up the four games they trail the Giants than the Yankees have to make up the 5 1/2 games separating them from the Indians.

The Dodgers still have six games left to play against the Giants, while the Yankees will meet the Indians only five more times. Theoretically, the Dodgers can remedy their present sad situation by themselves, but the Yankees can win all five remaining games with the Indians and still will need "outside help" to win the flag.

Yanks Edge Tribe

On the other hand, the Yankees hold an edge this season against Cleveland, 9-8, while the Giants are 9-7 over the Dodgers. But the Dodgers have won their last four meetings with the Giants.

In the National league, the third-place Milwaukee Braves trail by 7 1/2 games and have only five left to play with the Giants and six with the Dodgers.

In the American league, the third-place Chicago White Sox trail by 9 1/2 games and have six left to play with the Indians and three with the Yankees.

Today, the Giants and the Dodgers open their last western trips of the season—the Giants in Chicago for a day game with the Cubs

Sports Briefs

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—Former Boston Red Sox hurler Dick Brodowski is slated to pitch for Ft. Dix today against Camp Kilmer in the second round of the First Army baseball championships. In Monday's opening round, Dix ousted Ft. Monmouth, 12-1, and Kilmer defeated Camp Devens, 8-1.

BERNE, Switzerland (AP)—A Russian protest against organizing arrangements for the European track and field championships has been turned down. The Russian protest was directed at a ruling which forbids the playing of national anthems during the five-day meet. Press chief Karl Erb said "the protest was rejected categorically because we made the ruling in order to keep expressions of an unhealthy nationalism out of the game."

VANCOUVER (AP)—Halfback Al Pollard, formerly of the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Eagles, has been acquired by the British Columbia Lions of the Western Inter-Provincial Football Union in a move to strengthen their backfield. Pollard, 26, a 197-pounder, played college ball with Loyola of Los Angeles and West Point.

BITTER SAGE

By Frank Gruber

Copyright 1954 by Frank Gruber

THE STORY: The lawless town of Sage City has a conscience in the person of Luke Miller, editor of a weekly newspaper, but so far Miller finds odds against him. Jacob Fugger, unscrupulous businessman who has made a fortune off cowboys who drive cattle from Texas to Kansas, has attempted everything short of murder to drive Miller out of business. A hole card Miller does not know he has is his printer, "John Bailey." Bailey really is Wes Tancered, slayer of the notorious but popular outlaw, Sam Older. On Sunday Tancered and Lee Kinnaird, former marshal of Sage City, go to a spot at the edge of town where cowboys and residents are practicing shooting with pistols.

XXVII

The eyes of the entire group were upon him. The horseman rode back further, stopped and looked back.

The tall man in the Prince Albert nodded. "Try it there!" he called.

A murmur went up. "Three hundred yards!"

Kinnaird nudged Tancered.

"Watch this, now."

The Texas men clamored around the tall man in the Prince Albert. "Nobody can hit a target that size with a revolver," shouted one of them.

"They probably can't—down in Texas," retorted the tall man.

"Any Texan can beat any Yank at anything!" howled an irate cowboy.

The tall man pointed at the speaker.

"Five dollars says you can't hit that target."

"Five dollars says I can if you can," promptly retorted the cowboy.

"That's a bet!"

"And now," Kinnaird whispered to Tancered, "you'll have a chance to see Mr. Wild Bill Hickok."

"Hickok!" exclaimed Tancered.

"The one and only. I heard he got in town yesterday, but I didn't know he was staying over. Guess he needs the money. They don't know they're up against Wild Bill. Watch."

Wild Bill suddenly thrust out a long-barreled revolver and without aiming, fired.

The cowboy on his horse, who had pulled over to one side, galloped up to the target. Not believing his eyes, he dismounted and examined the target closely. Then he waved.

"He hit it!"

A shout went up among the Texas men surrounding Wild Bill Hickok. The man who had made the bet with him drew his gun. "I still got a chance."

"You're a fool, Hodge," he exclaimed. "That's Wild Bill Hickok."

The latter bowed slightly.

Harpending jumped to the ground. "All right if I shoot in place of Hodge?" he challenged Hickok.

"Why not?" Hickok asked coolly.

****

Wild Bill Hickok took a $5 gold piece from his pocket and handed it to Harpending. "You shoot very well, stranger."

"Good enough," said Harpending. He tossed the coin to his fellow Texan, Hodge.

"Care to move the target back another hundred yards?" asked Hickok.

"I can hit any target you can hit," snapped Harpending. But he did not look happy about it.

The target was moved back another hundred yards or so. Wild Bill Hickok smiled challengingly at Harpending.

"A small wager?"

"Now it comes," said Lee Kinnaird to Tancered. "I saw him do this in Abilene six years ago. Only then he fired almost 600 yards. The target was a little larger, but I doubt if there's another man in the entire west who can hit any target at all at 600 yards."

"Wasn't there a man named Bartles who shot rings around Hickok in a match during the war?" Tancered asked.

Kinnaird looked sharply at Tancered. "You're pretty well posted on shooters."

Tancered made no reply. The men had crowded around Wild Bill Hickok, making wagers with him.

He squared off, scarcely took more aim than he had previously and fired. Down near the target the cowboys rode up. "He hit it!"

A groan went up among the men surrounding Hickok, but Harpending, scowling, took up his position. He aimed and fired. The bullet kicked up dirt short of the target.

"Try it again," said Hickok.

Harpending emptied his revolver at the target, but failed to make a hit.

"Sorry, boys," said Hickok as he collected the bets. He jingled the coins in his hand. "I'll give $50 to any man who can hit the target."

"This is what I've been waiting for," said Kinnaird. He nudged Tancered and stepped up to Hickok. "I'll try that, Mr. Hickok."

The smile faded from Wild Bill's face. "Uh, hello, Kinnaird, didn't see you."

"Shake hands with a friend of mine," said Kinnaird, easily. "John Bailey, Bill Hickok."

Hickok shook hands with Tancered. "Bailey, mm, the name's familiar."

"Mr. Bailey works on the Sage City newspaper. Let's see, the offer was $50 to anyone who can hit the target, eh?"

"A bet," corrected Wild Bill. "Naturally. I'm not just giving money away. You've got to risk something, too."
